

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

THE BULLETIN OF THE PRINT DEPARTMENT

At the last meeting of the Trustees, a Department of Prints was established and Ralph King, a member of the Board, accepted appointment as Curator of Prints.

The collection of prints has already been well started. The Frederick Keppel Memorial, a collection of fifty-eight etchings and lithographs presented by Frederick Keppel & Company in memory of the founder of their house, to which Mr. King has added prints, is a good foundation on which to build. There is also the collection of forty-five prints from Turner's Liber Studiorum, presented by Miss Katherine Bullard in memory of Francis Bullard. In addition to these are a number of etchings, and also a set of portraits in mezzotint or engraving by Max and Albert Rosenthal, presented by the latter.

During the past year several important loan exhibitions have been held in the Print Room (Gallery XI), each limited to prints owned by Cleveland print lovers: two general exhibits last winter, and this fall the important showings of etchings by Zorn and Cameron. All of these have shown how keen is the local interest in etchings, and the fact that Mr. King has accepted responsibility for the development of this department places it at once upon a splendid basis and assures the steady development of the Museum collection. Mr. King is known to be a painstaking and discriminating collector, and all who are interested in prints will be anxious to assist him in making the Print Department an important phase of the Museum work.

Plans are already under way for the organization of a print club to assist in building up the Museum collection.

Mr. King will have an assistant, William McC. McKee, who is to become Librarian and will give part of his time to the practical care of the collection.

THE LIBRARY

Miss Marian Comings, who has been Assistant Librarian in Charge, has accepted a position in the Library of The Art Institute of Chicago. Miss Comings has given devoted service and carries to her new position the best wishes of the members of the Museum staff. William McC. McKee has been appointed Librarian and assumes his new duties early in the year. Mr. McKee brings enthusiasm and knowledge to his task. He also has a special interest in prints and will give part of his time to the newly organized Print Department.